

On the 29th November, we interviewed a past Governor. She just recently stepped down, however is still very involved in our school as her son is a student here.

You might know who she is already. Her name is Angela and she likes to eat steak but admits to eat nearly everything. Angela chose to be a governor at Ridge View because her son is here and she wanted to make the school the best for all the students. She also said; 'It is really important for me as a parent to know how school is doing'.

Before becoming a Governor, Angela was looking after George as a mum but for the last year, Angela has gone to work too.

As a Governor, she had to go to meetings in the evening. One lady; Anna, brings a list of things to talk about. They then talk about what has happened at Ridge View School; eg. how many students and staff are sick, money, what equipment to buy, etc.

INTERESTING INTERVIEW ANGELA IRAGGI

There is lots to talk about the new school build!

We asked her if she liked her job as a governor, which she did because it made her feel good and part of something big.

Before she became a governor, Angela had to learn to be a Governor. She went on different courses.

We asked Angela if she is raising money for the new school. And yes; she is fundraising for the equipment for the new school building. When the new school is finished we will buy things like tables, chairs and other equipment for the classrooms.

Angela asked us lots of questions, too and before we left we talked about how perhaps we could fundraise too?
